« Colors of Water » exhibition at Flers Castle Museum, May 19th - November 21st

On Wednesday May 19th, the Flers Castle Museum will open its doors for the new season. This year again, the museum team suggests a new attraction to the museum by opening a temporary exhibition on the different ways of representing water, « The Colors of Water ».

Temporary exhibition : « The Colors of Water »

« Water is the principle of everything », as Thales of Miletus, a Greek philosopher and scholar, put it. Everywhere present in painting, it is at once matter, pattern, setting and subject. Transparent by nature, painters and artists have known how to give it various forms and colors according to their impressions and inspirations.

For indeed, in the same way as feelings, water has one or several colors and this exhibition invites you to follow its way all along the paintings shown in Flers' and in Normandy's museums.

Three contemporary artists, Antoine Milian (outside), Marion Zylberman and Violaine Vieillefond at the same time invite you to discover their aquatic landscapes, treated so as to bring to light all the vital creative force of this element.

Around the exhibition, a vast program of activities for the whole family in order to help the public to discover this precious heritage of « Musées de France » : family week-ends, shows, games, drawing lessons... To be enjoyed until November 21st.
